GOODSPEED

AN APPRECIATION.

Among the many kind things which were written, either to me or in the public press, at the time of my brother's death, I have selected a letter to the Press by the City Librarian, though it is not possible to quote it in full, owing to lack of space.

“May I supplement your notice of the late Mr Frederic Johnson, and pay my tribute to his genius and scholarship. Your notice emphasised his excellent work as Ass. Secty. of the Archæological Soc. and City Archivist, but I think more may be said about his gifts as an East Anglian antiquary. Mr Johnson's antiquarian qualifications and knowledge were, indeed, extraordinary. He had an excellent knowledge of medieval Latin, Norman French, and old English: and he was most expert in the reading of all kinds of old local manuscripts: his great antiquarian knowledge embraced heraldry, genealogy, and local history, including, of course, an unrivalled knowledge of the early municipal history of Norwich. Mr Johnson's direct contributions to the literature of Norfolk archæology were unfortunately few; the greater part of his work being research on behalf of other antiquaries (English and American) many of whom incorporated in their writings the results of his labours. His intimate friend, the late Mr Walter Rye, frequently acknowledged his indebtedness to Mr Johnson. From personal knowledge I know that Mr Rye held Mr Johnson in the highest esteem, and greatly valued his expert knowledge. (Here follows a list of his publications) My own experience of Mr Johnson's work is that he was always most meticulously accurate and was ever ready to help students and research workers, and to give them the benefit of his wide experience and vast knowledge. Withal, his was a gentle and kindly spirit, which endeared him to his friends. His unassuming and retiring manner prevented his being as well known and as highly appreciated as he should have been. Frederic Johnson was a great antiquary, and his loss is irreparable."

Geo. A. Stephen.

(Chief Librarian to the City of Norwich.)

NOTE.

It is necessary to remember that the Calendar was reformed in England in 1752. Until then the year had been calculated according to a standard adopted by Julius Caesar. By 1752 it was 11 days wrong; by Act of Parliament these 11 days were omitted, and Sept. 3 was called Sept. 14. At the same time the New Year was changed from March 25 to January 1 these changes caused much dissatisfaction and confusion at the time, and are still a cause of trouble: for instance, a child born on March 24 1751 and dying two days later, would be entered as dying on March 26 1752.

“A very small matter and of no interest except to genealogists”. Still, we may be thankful the change was made then and not now.

FOREWORD.

My brother, Frederic Johnson, left behind him a mass of information about the Johnson family and its correlatives. This was contained in note books and pedigrees. The purpose of this small volume is to preserve this information, and to make it available for any who are interested in such matters. My brother was a professional Genealogist, and was scrupulously careful in all his work, but errors will creep in.

As regards my own part, I am very conscious of bad work: it has been done at odd times, extending over many years, interrupted by the Great World War. Nevertheless, I think that it is possible, by a series of references and cross references to draw up a pedigree from the details herein and to find what relationship exists between one person and another.

It is a lasting regret to me that it was only late in life I was able to take an interest in these matters; other things, pertaining to my calling, monopolized my thoughts and time. Again and again I am confronted with my lack of foresight in not speaking to my father and to my brother Fred about family matters, and before I realized how valuable such informa-tion would be, its sources were cut off.

Inasmuch as we owe the information herein to Fred, I have added an appreciation from a well known Norwich man. Here I would say that Fred invariably decried his abilities. Among other things, he was a fine draughtsman, as befitted an Architect: he was also a capable performer on the 'cello and the organ.

In character, he was the most gentle, kind, and generous fellow I have known.

He is gone but his works do follow him: and though dead, he yet speaks in these printed pages. If I have preserved from oblivion some of the Family information which Fred spent half a century in collecting, I shall be well content: it has been a labour of love for him.
